Task

Name .....

Read the stories. Can you identify the changes that each child experiences?

1. Melody's dad worked in the army so her family were always moving around. It felt like every year, Melody would arrive in a different place and have to meet a whole new group of people. She would also have to get used to different teachers- even the language of school changed sometimes! It was not just the language that was different but every school had a different collection of clubs: handball, jungle studies, winter sports club, water sports club. The list was endless. Melody's weekends were varied. Sometimes she would spend the day in the house watching films, sometimes she would have to go to afternoon parties organised by her parents. There were even times when she would be taken to exotic places. One weekend her family went camping in the desert!

2. Every day Kai would get up at 7am. He would have the same cereal, the same drink and would then brush his teeth before heading out the door at precisely 8am. Kai would take the same route and arrive in school with the same 'good morning' to his teacher. He liked the routine of school. Kai loved playing tennis so once break time arrived he would dash down the stairs and position himself on the court. He would usually play his friend Imran but he didn't really care who he played as long as he was hitting a tennis ball.

After school Kai would always go home via the park. He liked sitting in the park and reading Diary of a Wimpy Kid. He had all of the books in the series and read them over and over again. He knew the books so well that he could almost recite the pages word for word. Once home, Kai would have dinner and then go to bed. He would always be in bed by 8:30 and asleep by 9.
